

STEAM-SCHOONER" IS UNIQUE.

Vessel of the Pacific Adapted to Carry Heavy Loads.

The steam-schooner, a vessel whose build and habits are peculiar to the Pacific, writes Mr. Ralph D. Paine in "The Greater America," often goes to sea "with her load-line over her hatch," which means that after her hold has been crammed with cargo, a deck-load of lumber is piled half-way up the masts, so that her skipper puts out with the water washing over his main deck.

Along the harbor front of Seattle runs the story of a passenger who loped down to the wharf in a hurry to get aboard a departing steam schooner. He balanced himself on the string-piece for an instant, looked down at what little he could see of the laden craft, and hove his gripsack down the only opening in sight. He was about to dive after it when a lounge on the wharf shouted:

"Hi, there! Where do you think you're jumpin' to? That's the smoke-stack you tossed your baggage down."

"What!" gasped the passenger. "I thought it was the hatch."

The story has a slight flavor of exaggeration, but it may serve to hint that the commerce of the Pacific has ways of its own.—Youth's Companion.

MUST HAVE ASTONISHED BRUIN.

Hunter Dropped from Limb and Brute Shot Up in the Air.

"I never fooled a bear but once in my life," said an old California hunter. "I was hunting quail with a light gun one day, when I suddenly met a very large bear. I was willing to pass without speaking, but Bruin was mad about something and bristled up for a fight."

"So I let him have both barrels, and then cut for a tree. The shot dazed him for a minute, and then he gave chase, and pretty soon came clawing up after me. There was a long, projecting limb on one side, and when I saw him coming, I got out to the extreme end, although it bent like a reed under my weight."

"Out came the bear after me, slowly and carefully, and with every step the branch bent lower. When the bear got within two yards of me I was within ten feet of the ground. Then I dropped down, and as the bear shot up 20 feet in the air, I made for home as fast as I could run."

By Appointment.

In the dim-lit drawing-room on a keen winter's night sat Sweet Seventeen, smiling entrancingly at Ardent Twenty-One. Sweet Seventeen was uncommonly bewitching and Ardent Twenty-One appallingly earnest.

Gazing intently into the gold-red heart of the great log fire that blazed cheerfully in the grate, he poured forth his passionate address.

"How divine!" murmured Sweet Seventeen.

But the young man frowned and started.

"How divine! My dearest Hilary!"

"Hilary?" he said. "You mean George, pet, do you not?"

The maiden flushed and bit her lip.

"Oh, dear," she said, "how foolish of me! I was thinking that this was Saturday night!"—Tid-Bits.

Wise Old Noah.

A Sunday school teacher in Bryn Mawr was questioning her class about some prominent men of the old Testament. "Now, Henry, can you tell me who was the wisest man in the Bible?" she asked.

"Noah!" Henry answered promptly.

"Oh, no, Henry," the teacher said. "You don't mean Noah; you mean Solomon, don't you?"

"No, ma'am; I mean Noah."

"What makes you think that Noah was the wisest man?"

"Well," said Henry, "my papa says a man like Solomon, with 600 wives and 800 porcupines, is a blamed old fool, while Noah knew enough to get in out of the wet when it began to rain."

Evolution of the Squaw.

The fair visitor stopped in front of Chief Umbrella's tent.

"And are you a real Indian?" ventured the visitor, timidly.

"Um, yes," grunted Chief Umbrella, as he puffed his long pipe.

"Well—er—is it true that the red man makes the squaw do all the work?"

"Um, no. Used to, lady. Now squaw come from college, wear feathers instead of husband and make husband do all work and mind papoose. Education bad thing for poor red man, lady."

Overshoes for Horses.

In large cities like Chicago and New York icy asphalt pavements cause the death of hundreds of horses every winter. Many styles and shapes of shoes are now being introduced in an endeavor to stop accidents, one of the most promising of which consists of a chain tread, which can be quickly buckled on and as quickly taken off the foot of a horse without the use of tools. It is practically self-adjusting, is strong, cheap and durable.

May Refuse to Drink.

There is a movement among some of the graduates of the German universities to abolish compulsory drinking by members of the student corps. At present no one is admitted to these societies if he be an abstainer, and when students are initiated they are required to drink almost to the intoxication point.

THE GREAT SADDLE HORSE.

JOE JEWELL, JR.

The saddle horse of today is the horse that brings the money. If you have a horse that saddles and can change his gait he is worth $300 to $500. He is the only horse that can change his gait.

Joe Jewell, Jr., has colts to show here in Oregon that are saddle gaited.

Joe Jewell's colts took premiums at the Maitland fair.

Joe Jewell, Jr., was sired by Old Joe Jewell, of Lexington, Ky. Dam, by Old Flying Cloud, he by Peacock, by Pat Clayborne. Pat Clayborne's stock are the greatest saddle horses known today.

He drives well. He is a bay, weighs 1,100 pounds. Best disposition any horse could have.

TERMS: $10 for the season. Money due when mare is sold or removed from original locality. Care taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur.

Joe Jewell, Jr., will make the season at my place, formerly known as the Knowles place, east of the Oregon High school house. JAMES HINDE.

REALLY "OUR BEST PEOPLE."

Class That May with Propriety Be Termed Aristocrats.

All men are created equal, but they don't remain so, asserts a writer in the Cleveland Leader. Some raise themselves above the ruck by their minds; others by their goodness; a third set by their services to the state. The individual character and the individual energy make for uplifts in a thousand different ways. And when these qualities descend from generation to generation, growing like a rolling snowball, there naturally comes a class of men and women that can be called, with all propriety, "our best people." There's an aristocracy of intellect, of good breeding, of lofty purposes, of humanitarianism, of love of country and home, of the spirit that strives and the power that conquers. Men and women of wealth belong to it by virtue of themselves, not their treasures. But the cheap, vulgar, shallow people who have money and money alone, and those still cheaper people who mimic them as far as possible, think that "our best people" are only those who have great wealth and who spend it with a brass band accompaniment.

WHAT WAS THE GOOD OF IT?

Willie Wanted the Good Things of Life, Not Its Vanities.

Willie is six years old, with a brother and sister two and four years older, and these two were recently invited by Mrs. Blank to a little party, much to the discomfort of Willie, who was slighted. When the other two children had gone, Willie's mother was doing what she could to smooth his ruffled feelings.

"I heard Mrs. Blank talking about you, Willie, the other day," she said, "and she said you were the handsomest boy in all this town!"

Willie didn't say anything for a moment, and then he lifted his big, brown, tear-stained eyes to his mother's face.

"Well, mamma," he half sobbed, "what's the good of bein' beautiful if a fellow don't git invited to no parties?"—Young Ladies' Journal.

He Couldn't Pay.

The weakened old woman who keeps the candy store saw the pretty boy gazing longingly into the window. He was such a pretty boy that she got a touch of sentiment and called him into the shop.

"Here, little boy, is a stick of candy for you," she said.

"Oh, thank you," replied the boy, and started off with the candy.

"Aren't you going to pay me with a kiss?" said the woman.

The child's face showed dismay. He gazed first at the candy, then at the deeply wrinkled and not-over-clean face above him. Finally he said, hesitatingly:

"If I keep this candy must I kiss you?"

"Yes."

"Here," he exclaimed, giving her the candy.

He Had It.

He is a kindly and ambitious clerk in a shop, eager to please, but with limitations. He has a memory for the wants of his customers which to that extent is excellent, but it has small regard for minor details whose accuracy does not affect business, and his customers are tolerant.

Some time ago when the talk of denatured alcohol was considerable a customer asked him for some, but he said that the proprietor had not yet placed any in stock. When the same customer was in the store on another errand he beamingly exclaimed:

"Oh, Mrs. Blank! we've got some of that good natured alcohol now if you want it."

Start a New Paper.

"I have often wondered," said the Idiot to the Publisher, "why you fellows have never started a magazine called Rumor. It would be a corking success."

"I fail to see why," returned the Publisher.

"Because Rumor circulates rapidly and extensively," said the Idiot.

"And what would you have in it?" asked the Publisher.

"That's just the point," said the Idiot. "You needn't have anything in it. The less there is in a Rumor the greater will be its circulation."—John Kendrick Bangs, in Broadway Magazine.

A Danger Avoided.

It was a wise young man who paused before he answered the widow who had asked him to guess her age. "You must have some idea about it," she said, with what was intended for an arch sidelong glance.

"I have several ideas," he admitted, with a smile. "The only trouble is that I hesitate whether to make you ten years younger on account of your looks, or ten years older on account of your brains."

Then while the widow smiled and blushed, he took a graceful but speedy leave.—Youth's Companion.

Balzac in Church Pew.

The woman who had left a volume of Balzac in the church pew on prayer meeting night felt a little bit ashamed when she asked for the book, but the sexton assured her she need not feel that way.

"Many things are left in the church," he said, "and some of them are a whole lot less respectable than Balzac. After each service the pews yield a strange grist of forgotten or discarded articles."

THE EUREKA STOCK FARM. STUD ANNOUNCEMENT FOR 1908.

Kruger, No. 1447; Lawrenzius, No. 1937, and the Standard Bred Horse, Algernon B. No. 36,853, will make the season of 1908, at my breeding barn, 4¼ miles northeast of Oregon, Mo. These horses are proved breeders—we have the goods to show for it.

These horses are too well known for me to make any speech to you. The Colt Shows of the past talked louder than I could talk. In these shows you could see how the German Coach Horse crossed on both Road and Draft mares. They are the best horses to cross on all classes of mares there are in the country.

The Standard Bred Horse is all that could be combined in one horse. He has size and quality and breeding. For further particulars call at barn. Pedigree in full.

TERMS:—Lawrenzius and Algernon B., $12.50 to insure living colt; $7.00 for season. Kruger, $10.00 to insure colt; $6.00 for season. Mare and colt will be held for service fees. Money due when mare is sold or parted with. Care will be taken to prevent any accident, but will not be responsible should any occur.
